

ENCOMPASS™
FISHMEAL BY SCoulAR

Sustainable Advantage

With Encompass fishmeal, we understand the importance of maintaining resilient ecosystems that produce safe, nutritious, and high-quality food and feed ingredients. Challenges in climate health, overfishing, ecosystem losses, and lack of transparency across the supply chain could lead to food supply disruptions in the future. Our sustainability strategy directly addresses the responsible product sourcing for marine products as well as the environmental, social, and economic considerations that marine products have on our planet, ecosystems, communities, and people.

Supply chain management

Confidence from sea to feed

Scoular is committed to creating supply chain solutions that reduce the impact of the marine supply chain. Our long-term plan is to increase access to low impact feed options, help customers lower their carbon footprint and develop new markets, and reward suppliers for doing the same.

Economic support

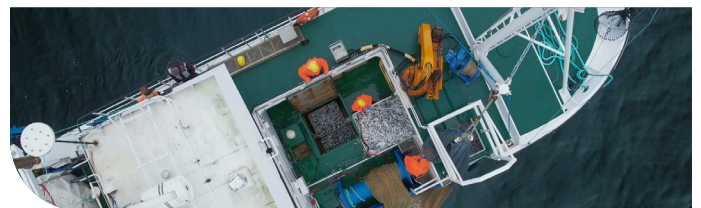

We use our influence to improve the social and economic standing of our producers, ensuring recognition for those who are doing the right thing.

Supply chain transparency

Through onboarding, documenting, auditing, and sharing key metrics across the supply chain, we aim to increase transparency.

Environmental impact

We're constantly promoting new products, services, and technology enablers that reduce waste, drive efficiency, and decrease the environmental impact and GHGs associated with these products.

Direct investment

We're building resilience in the ecosystems and communities that provide high quality marine feed ingredients. Investment activities include assets, capabilities and education and certification with partners.

Industry-wide collaboration

We work with customers, suppliers, NGOs, and other industry partners to promote best practices at every stage of the value chain.

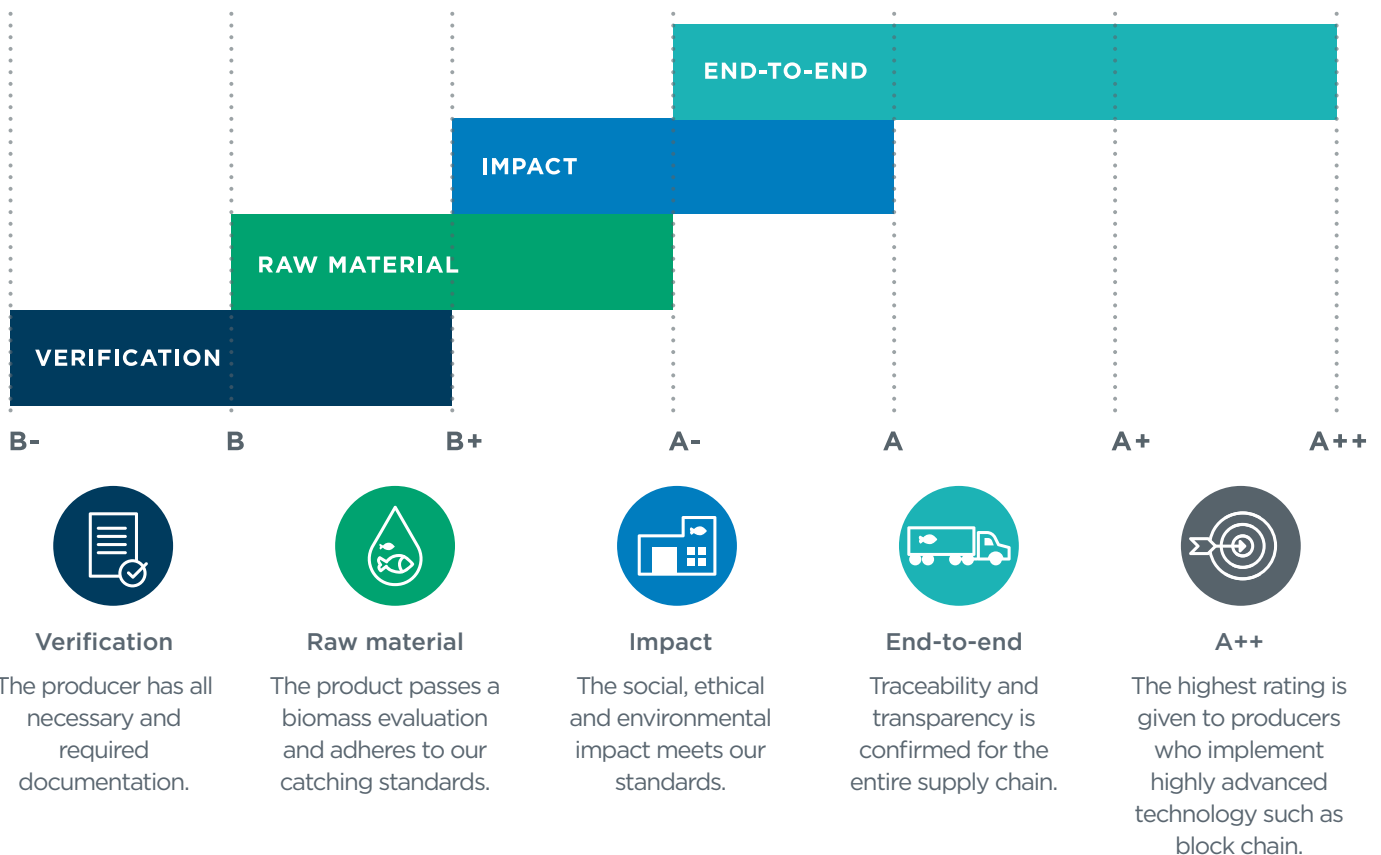

Meeting your needs, beyond certification requirements.

Scoular holds MSC and MarinTrust Chain of Custody certifications to ensure that you can meet the established BAP and ASC standards. Plus, all year long, we work diligently to ensure end-to-end traceability and transparency exceeding today's industry standards.

Products

Our classification system not only incentivizes our producers to use more sustainable practices, but also allows you to select ingredients that meet your exact certification needs. No matter your sustainability requirements, you'll be able to find a variety of marine ingredients that align. Through multiple variables our suppliers will be scored and can reach our highest standard of A++ including various third party verifications.
