Ask us about the benefits of dual inclusion in diets for gestating and lactating sows.

Provide anti-inflammatory benefits via maternal diets and help reduce acute physiological stress responses and improve growth performance that lasts into the postweaning period.

Improve Litter Size & Weaning

Studies show that adding 5 percent fishmeal to a sow's gestation and lactation diets can increase the number of piglets born per litter. With the added omega-3 fatty acids, the number of pigs weaned may improve by 0.3 to 1.1 pigs/litter, with reduced pre-weaning mortality.

Support Piglet Growth

Sows fed maternal diets including fish oil may support increased body weight of suckling pigs by as much as 7 percent. Fish oil supplementation can support their piglet's skeletal muscle development and promote overall growth performance in litters.
