SCOULAR®

With 134 years of experience and $7 billion in annual sales, Scoular provides diverse supply chain solutions for end-users and suppliers of grain, feed ingredients, and food ingredients.

Our employees buy, sell, store, handle, and process grain and ingredients and manage transportation and logistics worldwide.

Our Company

Scoular's roots in agriculture began in 1892 when George Scoular founded the company. The company remained under the ownership of the Scoular family until 1967, when it was acquired by a group of grain industry executives led by Marshall Faith, whose son David is the company's present-day chairman.

Throughout its history, Scoular has derived its revenues from a portfolio of merchandising and facility-based businesses with a wide array of customers, products, and geographies. Today, Scoular manages supply chain risk for customers in food, feed, and renewable fuel markets, leveraging a network of owned, managed, and third-party facilities coupled with truck, rail, barge, and container freight commitments. The company's marketing programs serve supplier and consumptive customers, with Scoular managing multiple segments of the supply chain.

Financial Strength

Our financial capacity has grown to annual sales of $8 billion. In 2025, Forbes named us as the 85th largest privately held company in the United States.

Additional financial information is available in Scoular's Dun & Bradstreet Business Information Report, reference number 14-715-8661.

Points of Interest

- Scoular is headquartered in Omaha, Nebraska. We have been an independent, privately owned company since our start in 1892.
- We are small enough to have personal relationships with our customers but big enough to reach markets in over 80 countries.
- Our local merchandisers are deeply knowledgeable about supply and demand, crop conditions and market movement. Farmers can turn to us for information to grow their business.
- We export more than 110,000 containers annually from the U.S., making us one of the country's largest exporters of ocean containers.
- We coordinate logistics for shipping agricultural products by rail, truck or barge from Scoular-owned or third-party facilities to destinations across North America.
- We are committed to providing value-added services to customers through investments in Scoular-owned facilities, like our dual oilseed processing facility in Goodland, Kansas, and our expanded feed blending facility in Jerome, Idaho.
- We are one of the largest marketers of fish meal and oil worldwide, sourcing from more than 60 countries and regions.
- We help leading North American food and beverage brands with ingredient expertise, application support, and concept-to-commercialization development.
